It's a special day in Kindergarten. Instead of saying goodbye to your dad before you leave for school, you jump in the car with him. But you're not following him around all day at work. Instead, he is following you around all day at school.

He will get the opportunity to see what a normal school day for you is like, including daily activities such as art class, reading, P.E., lunch and practicing letters. This one-day-a-week highlight of Kindergarten, known as Daddy Day Kindergarten.

Dads go way back in their memories of Kindergarten learning - writing the alphabet, coloring in the lines, and reading to the pretty pictures of the reading corner.

The most popular activity among the fathers and kids was Physical Education class. The Ladies' School P.E. teachers enjoyed creating new and exciting games for the special occasion. It was the kindergarten's version of dad's in a challenge to get the dads across the road the way they were assigned.

All dads really loved the day of Daddy Day Kindergarten because it served as an excuse to get away from the office and spend time with their child. Each dad anticipated this day all year long, at the end of the day, reluctantly leaves the world of machines and paper forms to return to the world of stress and coffee.

But before they have to get back to work, they have the chance to meet again where they bonded in school today.
